

Dear Friends:

NOTABLE RESEARCH OF THE WEEK

Sibling Divorce

Married adults with a divorced sibling—particularly an older divorced sibling—have a greater risk of divorcing their own spouse, report researchers at Delft University in the Netherlands.

NEW ENTRY TO MARRIPEDIA THIS WEEK

Effects of Family Structure on Healthcare Coverage

Shifting marriage patterns have significantly altered the healthcare coverage of American adults. As cohabitation rates rise, divorce becomes more commonplace, and young adults delay or forego marriage, the percentage of Americans eligible for employer coverage has diminished.

BLOG: Church and State: No; Government and Religion: Yes

I bet there is not a single person in the United States who advocates for a Church established by the State. On the issue of separation of Church and State we have total national agreement and it is a resounding: No, Never. However, on the integration of government and religion the answer has to be a resounding 'yes'.
