

Dear Friends:

NOTABLE RESEARCH OF THE WEEK

Division of Labor and Psychological Well-Being

Non-traditional division of paid labor—when mothers out-earn fathers—is linked to higher depression among both mothers and fathers, according to researchers at the University of Illinois.

NEW IN MARRIPEDIA THIS WEEK

New Entry: Effects of Family Structure on Children's Health

Children raised in intact families tend to be healthier, have better access to health care, and exhibit less emotional and behavioral difficulties as compared to children raised in non-intact families.
